Letter From The Editor

Creating this first issue of LQ magazine for women was no easy task, but I also found it to be the most rewarding. One may argue, being a guy might have a lot to do with it. My answer to them is no, finding interesting content and topics women were interested in was the challenge.

In this new magazine, women will be able to find a lot of interesting topics ranging from music, fashion, celebrity gossip and also about life and looking sharp with what you wear.

Most women probably are health conscious about a lot of things such as diets and exercise. In this issue we will be looking at a lot of fad diets and asking doctors why some of them work and why some should not have been created to begin with. Also dealing with diets we will be looking at the famous surgery that promises to help people lose weight.

Yup, it's the gastro bypass surgery! We will be asking the doctors about the pros and cons about getting it done and what ailments to look for after you have it done.

If you have been looking through the magazine for a while you will find it designed completely different from the mens edition of GQ.

Have you ever found a lot of ads in the beginning? As you look for the stories and as you flip you tend to find even more ads before you come across the contents page and any other information?

For the first time ever in GQ history we will be featuring this magazine with hardly any ads. Giving you the most up to date content and making it easy to search for the stories you want to read and letting you skip the stories you're not really interested in.

Here at LQ we hope you find this magazine entertaining, but also informative about certain issues going on with women in the world today.

In our Fashion Directories we will be looking at the hottest trends to hit the market this year ranging from hand bags to clothes and even the newest clothes when working in a business environment.

Have you looked over our table of contents? If you look carefully you will see everything is broken down to very simple areas for you to find the content easier.

Overall I hope everyone will have a good year and I look forward to hearing back from the readers.
